Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The employment-based immigrant visa petition was denied by the Director, Vermont Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office on appeal. The appeal will be summarily dismissed.

The petitioner seeks to classify the beneficiary as an employment-based immigrant pursuant to section 203(b)(1)(A) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(1)(A), as an alien of extraordinary ability in the field of construction. The director determined the petitioner had not established the sustained national or international acclaim necessary to qualify for classification as an alien of extraordinary ability.

8 C.F.R. § 103.3(a)(1)(v) states, in pertinent part, “[a]n officer to whom an appeal is taken shall summarily dismiss any appeal when the party concerned fails to identify specifically any erroneous conclusion of law or statement of fact for the appeal.”

The petitioner’s statement on the appeal form reads, in its entirety, “[t]he I-140 petition for an Immigrant Worker was denied because the $110.00 fee was not paid. Beneficiary has receipt where fee was paid.” Review of the director’s notice of decision, however, shows that non-payment of the fee was not a ground for denial. Indeed, if no fee had been paid, then the petition would have simply been rejected; no decision would have been rendered.

The petition was denied because, by law (section 203(b)(1)(A)(i) of the Act), the petitioner must establish that “the alien has extraordinary ability in the sciences, arts, education, business, or athletics which has been demonstrated by sustained national or international acclaim and whose achievements have been recognized in the field through extensive documentation.” The petitioner has not submitted any evidence to show that the beneficiary has earned sustained national or international acclaim.

Inasmuch as the petitioner’s appeal statement addresses a nonexistent basis for the denial, the petitioner has failed to identify specifically an erroneous conclusion of law or a statement of fact as a basis for the appeal. Therefore, the regulations mandate the summary dismissal of the appeal.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
